About the Artist & the Craft

Kelly "Kelebek" Wilcox has practiced the art of metalsmithing for several years. With a background in professional animation, she brings an eye for detail and a sense of movement to her work. She enjoys expressive arts and sciences, and has a passion for designing jewelry intended to hold personal meaning for the wearer and to be cherished by future generations.

The cuffs are all hand-crafted by Kelebek, no two exactly alike. She follows the classic Hopi overlay technique that she learned from master Norm Gutshall, who studied under Michael Kaboutie. Her designs, however, are original, influenced by ancient symbols and imagery from natural, artistic and mythic sources.
